OCS refuses to concur on the attached request for the following three reasons:

a. It is our technical judgment that the analog to digital device now proposed for installation in OCS in last quarter 1965 should be integrated as soon as possible into your plans. This would result both in savings to the Agency in money and manpower as well as giving you a device that is 2 to 5 times as fast as your proposed equipment.

b. In our role as Agency review staff of ADP equipment, your acquisition of SDS 930 only continues the proliferation of ADP equipment and makes ultimate centralization and integration of your needs more difficult.

c. Insufficient space is available for your expansion to the 930 in your present location in our Computer Center. OCS needs the space you now occupy, if it does acquire the proposed A to D facility.
